

SPM written exams to start this Wednesday

By Adib Povera - February 28, 2022

A total of 407,097 candidates will be sitting for the Sijil Pelajaran Malaysia (SPM) written examinations starting this

KUALA LUMPUR: A total of 407,097 candidates will be sitting for the Sijil Pelajaran Malaysia (SPM) written examinations starting this Wednesday until March 29.

The Education Ministry's Examination Syndicate in a statement today said 50,154 examination officers have been appointed and deployed to 3,382 examination centres around the country to ensure the written SPM exams proceed smoothly.

Candidates, the statement said, are required to comply with guidelines issued by the ministry on the operations of schools and examination as well as the standard operating procedures (SOP) on Covid-19 prevention as issued by the National Security Council and Health Ministry.

"Candidates are also reminded to bring along their identification documents and examination registration slips to the centres.

"They can refer to the Examination Syndicate's official site at <http://lp.moe.gov.my> for all information about the written SPM examinations including the date, time, papers as well as instructions that need to be adhered to throughout the period of the examination," read the statement.