KUALA LUMPUR: Malaysia through the Communications and Digital Ministry will organise the Malaysia Digital Expo 2023 (MDX2023) in November.

Communications and Digital Minister, Fahmi Fadzil, said the organising of this event was a follow-up to Malaysia's success in securing investment commitments totalling RM8.3 billion in various digital technology sectors during an investment mission to the London Technology Week 2023 which ended yesterday (June 15).

He said MDX2023 would be a platform for local industry players to display their services and products to local and international visitors.

"Through this initiative, more investments can be generated to further drive the digital economy sector. To digital economy players, see you at MDX2023!," he said in a Facebook post.

Yesterday (June 15), Fahmi said the week-long MDX2023 would feature various activities like conferences, exhibitions, launch events and award ceremonies involving leading international speakers and personalities from the technology and digital fields.

According to Fahmi, MDX2023 will also serve as a cooperation platform and business channel for visitors and industry players from both the domestic and international fronts to embrace the latest digital trends, development and initiatives which form the Malaysian digital economy. – Bernama
